PLOWIN' DEEP

"You'll do somethin' for me?"
"Ay, mither, anything in the world."

"Shut your eyes 'an' stand close to the table." I obeyed.

She put into my hands a stick with which my father was accustomed to smooth the soles of the shoes which he cobbled.

"Jist for the noo these are the handles of a plow. Keep yer eyes shut tight. Ye've seen a man plowin' a field?"

"Ay."

"Think that ye see a long, long field. Ye're plowin' it. The other end is so far away that ye canna see it. Ye see a wee bit of the furrow, jist a wee bit. Squeeze the plow handles."

"That's that," I said. "Listen, dear. Ye've put yer hand to the plow. Ye must never, never, take it away. All through life ye'll have them plow handles in yer hands and ye'll be goin' down the furrow. Ye'll crack a stone here and there. The plow'll often stick and things'll be out o' gear, but yer in the furrow all the time. Ye'll change horses. Ye'll change clothes. Ye'll change yerself, but ye'll always be in the furrow, plowin', plowin'."

"Plowin'." Yer God's plowman."

"A plowman who skims the surface of the sod strikes no stones, dear, but because he isn't plowin' deep."

WHAT WILL YOU WRITE?

"What shall I write in my new blank book?" said Ada to herself. She could not write very well, but she did the best she could.

This is what she wrote: "A Good Girl."

She took the blank book and showed it to her mother.

"That looks very well," she said. "That is a good thing to write. I hope you will write it in your big book."

"Why, mother," said Ada, "I haven't any big book."

"Yes, you have, my dear," said the mother; "a big book with a great many pages. Each day you have a fresh page. The name of the book is 'Life.'"

MR. SPEAKMAN ENDORSED

(Edmonton Journal, Nov. 15th)
At the annual convention of the political association for Red Deer, on Thursday, a vote of confidence in the member for the riding, Mr. Alfred Speakman, was unanimously passed. This action was taken after he had delivered a two-hour address on the work of the last session at Ottawa in the course of which he defended his action in opposing the Woodsworth Shaw amendment to the budget.

The seven Alberta members who supported the amendment shortly afterwards joined hands with some from other provinces in forming what came to be known as "the ginger group." A letter was sent to Mr. Forke, in which it was stated that henceforth they did not propose to attend the caucus of the parliamentary group, of which he is the leader. Its organization, they declared, "tends to perpetuate the type of parliamentarism already described and which we were elected to oppose and to hamper us in the advocacy of those principles to which we adhere." The divergence of viewpoint has become so marked, the letter continued, "that it would seem in the best interests of the movement that we be left free from constraint to work for the cause independently of the present parliamentary organization."

After the session several statements were made by Alberta representatives which clarified still further what had happened at Ottawa. On July 15, Mr. Irvine, the member for East Calgary, published an article in "The U. P. A." in which he pointed out that four of the U. P. A. members did not see their way clear to take their stand with the others—"though as a matter of fact there were five, Messrs. Warner, Koller, Lucas, Speakman and Jelliff."

It is not for me, continued Mr. Irvine, to judge these men nor call their motives in question. They no doubt are sincere in staying with the Progressive party. They probably think that in so doing they are carrying out the U. P. A. principles. They are wrong. It is not for me, continued Mr. Irvine, to judge these men nor call their motives in question. They no doubt are sincere in staying with the Progressive party. They probably think that in so doing they are carrying out the U. P. A. principles. They are wrong. It is not for me, continued Mr. Irvine, to judge these men nor call their motives in question. They no doubt are sincere in staying with the Progressive party. They probably think that in so doing they are carrying out the U. P. A. principles. They are wrong.

The other Alberta members were described by Mr. Irvine as having at last put themselves from the party into whose hands they were lured when they attended the Saskatoon convention of Progressives after the last election.

Parliament is expected to meet again in January, but it has yet to be determined whether the majority or the minority of the Alberta representatives have the approval of the U. P. A. as a whole of the course which they adopted last session. Mr. Speakman has had his stand endorsed by his constituency organization, but that in Battle River, which met in August, heartily approved of the action of its member, Mr. Spencer, in withdrawing from the Progressive caucus and associating himself with the "ginger group." Other ridings have yet to be heard from.

Such a division as has manifested itself is of legitimate interest to the Alberta public at large as well as to those who are entitled to register their opinions at U. P. A. gatherings. Due would think that each member, before he returns to Ottawa, would put his case, as Mr. Speakman and Mr. Spencer have done, before his constituency association so that he may know how his attitude is regarded by those responsible for his election.

Alberta Judging Teams Win

Considerable distinction has been brought to the Province of Alberta during the past week by the success of the stock judging teams which represented the province at the Royal Stock Show at Toronto.

The team in swine judging from Vegreville, comprised of Albert Jones and Peter Wylie, was successful in winning the Canadian National stock judging competition against the other western teams at Toronto. This team was coached by P. H. Newcombe, district agriculturist of the Provincial Department at Vegreville. The MacDonald cup in the stock judging contest at Toronto was won by the team from Alberta University, composed of Thomas, Devlin, Wm. Gentlemen, Malcolm McEwen, C. K. Johns and L. B. Thomson, in charge of this has been a wonderful thing for the country. It has provided employment for thousands, and has distributed hundreds of millions of dollars in wages. It has put on their feet towns and cities that were languishing. It has caused other places to grow rapidly from small communities into large cities.

This branch-factory building has been the most marked development in the industrial life of Canada during the last quarter of a century. It accounts very largely for the rapid industrial expansion that has taken place. On this point there is not the slightest dispute. The person who seriously argued that these branch plants were no good for the country would be derided.

This subject is bound to receive more consideration because of the return of the Conservative party in Great Britain. As is well known, it is committed to the adoption of a certain amount of protection. The best evidence of this is to be seen in its preferential trade proposals, which are sure to be adopted. On this matter Premier Baldwin is committed.

In proportion as the British preference is applied within the Empire to products manufactured therein, the greater the inducement will be on the part of the American firms to establish branch plants in Canada. For in doing so they not only are assured of getting into the Canadian markets on a better basis than if they manufactured wholly in the United States; but they are also permitted to get into the British Empire market on equal footing with other British firms. Next possibly to the United States, the British Empire market is the best in the world.

From this it follows that the wider the application of the British Preferential trade policy by other portions of the Empire the better will it be for Canada, to that extent has she a better chance to produce manufactures for these other portions. The trouble to date with this policy has been that, for Canada, it has been a case of giving much in the way of a preference and getting very little out of it. But in proportion as Britain goes in for it, the more will Canada's position be improved.

This brings one back to the principle that Protection is absolutely necessary to the adoption of a truly preferential trade policy, and that Canada stands to secure branch factories in proportion as this takes place. Even a lower tariff would kill the movement of branch factories to Canada, to say nothing of the effects that are sure to follow the full fruition of a policy, which, its supporters say, "sounds the death knell of Protection."

THE TARIFF AND BRANCH AMERICAN PLANTS

Protection and the establishment of branch industrial plants in Canada by firms having their headquarters in other countries is one of the results of the tariff. Let no one think otherwise. There would be little surprise in an American manufacturing firm opening a branch plant in Canada if it could ship in its products free of duty.

For the same reason there would be no purpose in a British firm opening a branch plant in this country.

So if Canada is to retain what branch plants she has, and is to get more of them, she must retain her tariff. No argument is required to demonstrate the truth of this statement. It is obvious to anyone who gives the subject the slightest consideration. Even a free trader must admit that without protection the number of branch plants established in this country would be few.

Fully 700 branches of American industrial firms have been located in Canada during the last 25 years. These represent an investment of over $700,000,000. Everybody admits that this has been a wonderful thing for the country. It has provided employment for thousands, and has distributed hundreds of millions of dollars in wages. It has put on their feet towns and cities that were languishing. It has caused other places to grow rapidly from small communities into large cities.

changed, but the market has been really better owing to lighter supply and active demand. Choice heavy steers, $4.25 to $4.85; choice light, $4 to $4.50; good, $3.50 to $4; medium, $3
to $3.50; common, $2 to $3. Choice

Calgary market has been responding to a little better tone and Wednesday's sales were up to $7.50 on the thick smooths, with bacon 10 per cent
premium. Today's thick
smooths, $7.50 to $8.00; medium, $7.00
to $7.50; thin, $6.50 to $7.00. Bacon
10 per cent premium. Today's thick

Edmonton prices have been holding steady for greater part of the week with $7.75 the quotation on thick smooths, off cars; bacon 10 per cent
premium.

Calgary receipts moderate and prices fairly steady on lambs ranging from $13.50 down, but they have to be good; others $10.00 to $12.00; ewes, $9 to $10; fat ewes, $4 to $7. Breeding ewes around $12 each and some cheap ones at $14.

Edmonton mutton prices fairly steady with a slightly weaker tone on lambs now $11 to $12.50 for choice;
yearlings, $9.50 to $10.50; fat ewes,
$4 to $5.

Grain—This week has all been bullish, but the market has apparently been discounting it, for there was not any material advance, though quotations are keeping up fairly high, with fluctuations. The latest official quote from the Agricultural Institute at Rome is that there is a shortage of 40,000,000 bushels of wheat, when 375,000,000 bushels of rye reported from all countries, which is a whole lot.

Butter—Cream—Cheese—
Butterfat—Alberta prices all raised 2c during the week, making price now at centals: Special grade, 24c; first, 22c; seconds, 20c; off grade, 24c.
Quality point creameries, 24c under.
Manitoba prices also raised. In Saskatchewan there has not been any advance so far as we know. Creamery Butter—Prices advanced 3c on prints
and cartons, making the cartons, No.
1 and No. 2, now 48c and 36c; prints,
No. 1 and No. 2, 36c and 32c. The carton price, basis specials, still around 34c. Dairy Butter—Very little offered. Cheese—Market firm and unchanged.

Eggs—Poultry—All prices weaker: Turkeys, 15c for No. 1 over 10 lbs. and down to 9c for No. 2; fowl, No. 1 over 4 lbs. 10c, down to 6c for No. 2;
chickens, No. 1 12c; No. 2 10c; ducks 10c and geese 3c. Not much demand for dressed shipments yet.

Supplies of fresh poultry eggs are coming from the coast and will soon affect local fresh; at present practically no fresh Albertas offered.

Potatoes—Good demand and active market
on deliveries in small quantities at Calgary, ranging around 25c for a grade;
market outlook considered favorable
for winter and spring sales.

Hay—Business very active, but holders of good quality upland within shipping distance of Calgary now asking up to $12, though most sales still around $11 for best and down to $10 for longer haul. No alfalfa moved from territory east of Calgary yet.
Lethbridge alfalfa quoted $13.50 down to growers; Lethbridge timothy, $12 to $15.50; Edmonton timothy, $14 to $16; upland, $8.50 to $11.

Hides—Prices are being kept up by buyers,
but tanners refuse to buy at advances,
and say if they cannot get hides for leather they will have to buy hides lower.

Furs—No coyote skins are in good demand and quoted up to $9 now, but on anything except the really good ones the market is drab. No alteration in other prices yet.

M.D. OF GOLDEN WEST

The eighth regular meeting of the Council of the M.D. of Golden West,
No. 37, was held in the municipal office at Sylvan Lake on November 15, with John E. Smith, Reeve, in the chair, and all the members of Council and the Secretary in attendance.
The meeting was opened at 1 p.m.

The Superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Edmonton wrote on October 27, stating that they could not undertake to have a survey and plans made for a crossing at Mileage 28 on the Alberta Central Railway, as the Municipal District was the applicant for the change of crossing. After considerable consideration by the Council,
it was moved by Councillor Isaacson
that the matter be tabled until a later date. Carried.

The Department of Municipal Affairs advised that the contract covering the S.W. quarter of section 3-27-3-5 had been cancelled and the land reverted to the Canadian Pacific Railway. The Elizabeth Clark, Superintendent of Public Health Nursing Branch of the Department of Public Health, wrote on November 7, stating that provision was made for the care of aged and mentally defective indigents at the Mackay General Hospital at Mackay
and at the Providence General Hospital at Dugald.

The Red Deer Hospital advised that Mr. Joe Cochet was admitted as a patient on October 16, with a fractured

Mrs. E. E. Emmans, of 215 Seventh Ave., N. E., Fortage Lake, Sask., is one of the many Canadian mothers who are enthusiastic about the vaporizing salve, Vicks VapoRub, for treating children's colds. Mrs. Emmans writes: "My little girl had a cold at night pretty badly and I tried for the best of the week. I have also used it with very satisfactory results for head and chest colds."

Vicks is just "rubbed on" for sore throat, tonsillitis, bronchitis, croup
or deep chest colds. When so applied, Vicks has a double direct action: immediately medicated vapors are inhaled while,
at the same time, extremely, it is absorbed through and stimulates the skin.

H. Gordon, Edmonton, District Superintendent of the Soldier Settlement Board, wrote regarding the drought area of Southern Alberta where were moving to the northern and central parts of the province, and desiring a list of farms that can be rented on crop shares to practical farmers with complete outfits of stock and machinery.

Ed. Watson, of Red Deer, wrote stating that he had a lease of the north half of 35-37-3-5 last summer for the purpose of pasturing cattle. Councillor Stringer was not satisfied that the land should be exempted from Wild Land taxation, and would make further investigation.

Mr. Hope, Tax Commissioner of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., Calgary,
asked for particulars of the assessment
made this year.

The Registrar, Land Titles Office at Edmonton, advised that caveats had been discharged regarding various parcels of land on November 4.

Moved by Councillor Smith that,
pending other arrangements being made, Mr. D. Hall be paid the sum of $15 per month for the care of F. Small, Carried.

Moved by Councillor Isaacson that the Reeve be authorized by the Council to provide assistance for S. P. Nicholson, of Burn Lake, who is old and an indigent. Carried.

examination, ordered to be paid on motion by Councillor Stringer:

DEATH OF MR. CHAS. HAY

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hay, Red Deer, have been bereaved by the death of Friday at Vancouver, B.C., of Mr.
Hay's father, Mr. Chas. Hay, at the advanced age of 91. Mr. Chas. Hay was one of the outstanding pioneers of Western Canada. He was a native of the Orkney Islands, Scotland, and came to Canada at the age of 17 in the service of the Hudson's Bay Company. He served three years with the "Gentlemen Traders" and later was identified with an important trading company, travelling in the Peace River, Athabasca and Mackenzie river districts. He homesteaded in portage in the Prairie in 1857, and was generally a member of the Manitoba Legislature for Norfolk. Some twenty years later he went to Vancouver to enter the real estate and insurance

ST. LUKE'S CHOR SOCIAL

Mrs. H. S. Pearson was the hostess on Wednesday evening to members of St. Luke's choir. A very pleasant evening was spent in which the Red Deer Coverly, choruses, one or two sologs, gramophone and piano selections
and other diversions. The whist prizes, for high and low score, were won by the ladies' side, by two of the new hoor members, Mrs. Filmer and Miss Rosalie Castle; gentlemen's prizes went to Messrs. H. Huie and W. F. Harris.
Mr. H. E. Callender, vice-president, presented the prizes in the absence of Mrs. Edgington.

On behalf of the choir, Mr. Harris, conducting, presented a gold bracelet presented to Mr. W. R. P. Patchett, late organist at St. Luke's, who left responsibility for Cranbrook, B.C.

A resolution was passed expressing sympathy with Mr. Richard Williams, of Ponoka, in the loss of his wife, who was a very popular member of the choir before she was married.

HOW TO DRESS TURKEYS

Starve the bird for 24 hours before killing, but water can be given. Tie the bird's feet together with a stout cord and hang up. Then open its mouth and cut the two veins on the sides of the throat, using a broad bladed knife with a double edge.
Then stick the bird in the brain by driving the knife through the root of its mouth until the knife hits the skull. Turn the knife before withdrawing it. Sticking the bird in the brain paralyzes it and the muscles immediately relax.

You should start to remove the feathers at once, pulling the large wing
and tail feathers with a twisting movement. Be sure that the bird is bleeding freely and in order to keep the blood from apshaping on the worker, a small tin pail can be hung on the bird so that its head is inside
the pail.

Remove all the feathers, then hang the bird up to cool for at least 24 hours before packing. Don't let the bird freeze and do not keep it in too warm a temperature. Wrap the heads before packing and dine the boxes in which the birds are packed with paper and put paper between the layers of birds. Do not pack turkeys in large crates as they are apt to bruise badly. Use small boxes that will hold about 12 birds or so apiece.
Do not trust or tie the birds up with string or binder twine. This is apt to make them sweat.

No. 2 turkeys are graded down for the following reasons: Crooked
breasts, bruises, torn skin, thinness, redness (caused by insufficient bleeding). Do not remove the feet or head and do not draw them. Tag crates on both ends and put another tag inside the box.

THE VALUE OF WEMBLEY TO CANADA

Now that the Great Empire exhibition in London is closed, at least temporarily, it is possible to consider what its value has been to Canada. It costs a great deal. Are we likely to get any adequate return for the public money expended on the Canadian exhibits? We believe that the answer should be so. By general consent the Canadian exhibits were amongst the very finest in the whole exhibition. Both the Government and the Canadian Pacific Railway exhibits conveyed to the visiting public a highly striking idea of the greatness of Canadian resources and the rich possibilities of our country. The idea could not have been so conveyed at a better time, for the unemployment situation in Great Britain, the Conservative programme of Empire development, and the result of the general election in Great Britain, have all brought strongly before the minds of British people the question of emigration and capital investment in the overseas dominions. If the people of Great Britain realize that not only has Canada vast areas of farm lands awaiting settlement, but also mineral resources, timber, water power, fisheries and furs all capable of yielding employment both for capital and for men, the result may be an era of development and growth in Canada that will bring prosperity on a highly satisfactory scale. Undoubtedly, the hope of Great Britain lies in Empire development, and undoubtedly Canada is for most of her people the most attractive of the dominions on account of proximity and general conditions. The idea of Canada as an ice-bound wilderness, if it still lingers on in the minds of the more ignorant of the British people, could hardly survive the sight of the well developed products of Canada at the exhibition—the fruits, the grain, the illuminated railway maps showing the network of railways crossing the continent, the varied examples of Canadian resources and industry. A large proportion of the people of Great Britain, 45 millions in all, visited Wembley. Few of those who did so can have failed to see the Canadian pavilions. It was a magnificent chance for advertisement, and the chance was well made use of. This is an age of advertising on the grand scale. Advertisements receive probably more attention than at any previous time, and such an advertisement as Canada received at Wembley will almost certainly bring in due time ample repayment for what it cost. We cannot do too much to preserve the predominantly British character of our country. We cannot on the other hand do too much to bring home to the British public that here and not in Bolshevik Russia is the proper place for British capital to be invested and for British trade to find its means of stimulus, which will relieve the nightmare of unemployment. Our exhibits at Wembley have done not a little in that direction, and we believe that they represent money well spent.

A POLITICAL ROCKET

When Mr. Ramsay MacDonald became the first Labour Prime Minister of Great Britain, the people of Canada were disposed to look with much sympathy on him and to wish him all success. It is difficult to retain that sympathy in view of his behaviour before and during the recent general election which so utterly crushed him and his government. As to the merits of the political parties in Great Britain it is not our part to say anything, but it is difficult not to regret the lack of dignity and the whining, abusive note which pervaded his speeches and declarations before, during, and after the election.

It is a matter of general and not of partisan interest to wonder if this is the end of his career as a leading British politician. He has had strange ups and downs. During the war his active pacifism led to his being beaten in the 1918 election and ceasing to be a member of Parliament, as well as incurring a certain measure of social ostracism. Yet after five brief years he had leaped upward to the position of Prime Minister, and as such he was treated with a respect and kindness by all parties which was more than a little surprising. For a time it seemed as if he was going to rise to unusual heights even for a British Prime Minister. He was acclaimed as a great and successful leader in British foreign policy. His words were listened to with deference throughout Europe and indeed the world.

Now he has fallen, and not only the majority of the British people but every man of his own party have turned away from him with something like contempt. He has created the impression of an essentially weak man, who was unable to prevent the courtesy of friends and political opponents from turning his head, and who was likewise unable to stand against the extremists of his own party when they threatened him with rebellion if he resisted them. There is something not wholly unlike the late President Wilson of the United States in Mr. Ramsay MacDonald. Illness and death prevented President Wilson from showing whether he was capable of again gaining the confidence of his countrymen. It is to be sincerely hoped that no such tragedy lies before Mr. MacDonald. If for no other reason than the touch of human interest which attaches to all sudden and great changes of fortune, many will wish to see what course the career of Mr. MacDonald will now follow. He may confound all his critics by again climbing to power, or he may lapse back into the obscurity from which he came. We in Canada can watch the working out of this human problem with the impartial interest of detached observers.

BLUNDERING IN IMMIGRATION POLICY

We have had occasion in Red Deer in the last two or three years to pay a good deal of attention to the immigration policy of our Government owing to the fact of our district having been made one of the reception points of immigrants. These have mainly come from the north of Scotland, and they have been welcomed here by everybody as just the type of people we wanted. It is, therefore, disturbing to learn that not long ago the whole movement of emigration from the north of Scotland to Canada nearly resolved a disastrous blow through the foolish (to put it in the kindest way) blundering of someone or other in the Canadian immigration department. Regulations had been framed and made public for the bringing of married men and their families to the West as well as for locating single men in various districts of Alberta and Saskatchewan. On the strength of these announcements large numbers of families in Scotland had made all arrangements to come to Canada, had broken up their homes and incurred potential expenses heavy enough to be very serious for them. Suddenly it was decided to change the scheme of emigration and the regulations governing it, and it was announced to the Canadian Government agents in Scotland that married men and families would not be taken and that single men would be taken only to Winnipeg and dispersed from there. No provision whatever was suggested for dealing with those who had, as above stated, incurred such serious commitments on the faith of the superseded regulations. Fortunately, the Canadian Government were not allowed to make the blunder. It was urgently represented to them that the effect of such action would be simply disastrous for future emigration to Canada from Scotland as showing that the good faith of the Canadian Government could not be relied on. The original policy was rescinded, and there has been reason to believe that properly drastic steps were taken at Ottawa to see that the individual, who had given the entirely misleading information which nearly caused the blunder, did not get a chance to repeat his performance. It was however only due to the energetic initiative from one particular quarter that this mistake was averted. We in Red Deer, who value this immigration from the Highlands of Scotland, may hope that such things will not be allowed to happen again.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Advocate condemns the use of superlatives in an editorial, and in the adjacent column speaks of "The most persistent and energetic propagandist of the Liberal party issues in platform and leader." * * * is the editor of The Calgary "Albertan." Before an adjective "most" is the superlative. The Advocate also suggests Davidson for Liberal leader. We believe the Advocate should minimize his superlatives in mentioning Davidson, who was a traitor to the Liberal party and seems to contemplate repeating the performance with those who voted him into the legislature.

Premier King sees a future for Canada with no East and no West—no French and no English. If his government continues piling up deficits and national debt, destroying industries and killing trade, as in the past, his prophecy will no doubt be realized. It will be a Canada with "no anybody."

Papers states that the police have arrested the worst confidence man in the States. If they get the worst in Canada we don't know who will be Premier.

We were glad to see Inskip, of The Adelphi Hotel, Lacombe, cleared of the charges against him. It seems a pity that to satisfy personal feelings and that we fail in our duty if we fail to take a share in their activities. Indeed I cannot imagine any self-respecting business man failing to become a member of the Board of Trade. Whether he is a member or not, he is a beneficiary, and only a parasite will continue to receive benefits year after year without doing anything in return.

There has been giving a lot of consideration to a condition of affairs that exists in our country, that I believe assures no good to future welfare of the community. I refer to the increasing reluctance of many of the best citizens to accept nomination for service on public bodies. Particularly is this evil prevalent in Western Canada, where, because of the peculiar problems incident to the growth of a young and virile nation, strong and wise leadership is more necessary than in older settled communities, whose problems can usually be solved by reference to precedents created in the past.

It is difficult to arrive at the reasons that have brought about this un-British state of affairs. I use the term un-British advisedly for there is no doubt that the position of Britain today in the world is the result of the fact that for centuries the best in the land have considered it an honour and privilege to serve their fellow citizens in a public capacity. Of course in Britain existed a class who by reason of their position of birth and education naturally gravitated to positions of public responsibility and service. These were the governing classes, provided England with her Magistrates, Judges, officers of Army and Navy, in fact certain spheres of public service were reserved for this class alone and were appointments made directly by the Crown.

These were very valuable services to the realm and much of this service was given gratis; but at the same time there was another very important class of public servants, those who represented the people as distinct from those who represented the King. These included M.P.s, members of county and city councils, town and village boards, and the various bodies that carried on the work of local government. As the feudal system began to decay, and the common people began to assert themselves, they found that the best method to deal with those holding authority from the Crown was to appoint their own representatives. In these early days very little freedom or liberty was accorded the common people, but as the years went on the power of the crown became greater, and by the time of Charles I. so great was the prestige of the monarch that he could do as he pleased and did actually defy the King. It was under the control and administration of these councils, largely composed of merchants, many European towns became independent republics, very wealthy and very powerful.

The city councils were the pioneers in the government of the people by the people, and to a very large degree British Constitutional government is the fruit of the experiments of the early city councils of England. They were freed from the common people from the crown and aristocracy; they evolved a system of government that has been copied in every democratic country in the world. And how was this made possible? It was made possible because the very best men in the community regarded the public office of councillor as a privilege to be desired. It could never have been possible if the best brains, the most energetic, the highly educated, had not regarded it so. It seems to me that we have got a long way from that spirit in this country. It seems to be getting more and more difficult to get business men to regard public office as something to which they should aspire. Rather do they regard it as something to avoid.

Every citizen has a stake in the community and should be willing to do something to protect his own interest if he has no higher motive of service. Just try to imagine the outcome of this policy of aloofness if carried to the extreme. Just what a condition of official bondage would befall if every citizen in the community refused to serve. John Burns, who was one of the best Presidents of the Local Government Board has had, visited the States to observe local government as carried on there. His observations led him to state that the deplorable condition existing at that time in the cities of U.S.A. was the result of the withdrawal of the best citizens from public service. Leaving as they did local government in the hands of the self-seeking politicians with axes to grind, the inevitable result manifested itself in such organizations as Tammany Hall, a name that is still synonymous with graft and corruption.

We are infants in this country, and we have very serious difficulties confronting us in this city, problems that tax the best of us. While better off than many others, we are staggering under far too great a load of taxation. The task of making our income and expenditure will continue to receive benefits year after year without doing anything in return.

There was a striking article recently in a magazine about the City of Jackson, where credit was so rotten that the Western Union actually refused to accept a message at a cost of sixty cents.

The story of the redemption of this city is a story of co-operation on the part of the citizens and wholehearted service on the part of the council. The council of six was elected from eight men who were drafted for this service. They gave a pledge to the citizens that they would do their bit and asked for intelligent criticism, the citizens on their part taking a pledge that they would loyally co-operate with the council and would refrain from criticism unless conversant with all the facts.

If all our citizens would do this thing, how much more agreeable would public service become. After mentioning some of the names of the members of the council, among them Mr. J. Chamberlain and Lord Peel, who had devoted years to municipal service, the speaker concluded with:

Gentlemen, I know of no service at present in this city that is more worthy of your earnest consideration. We cannot be self-respecting and decline to accept our responsibilities. The cowardly attitude that says let George do it is bound to react unfavourably on us all.

Gossard Corsets

Formerly women bought corsets largely upon appearance value, with little or no regard for health or comfort.

To-day, with health conservation and personalized style the by-words of fashion, women are buying corsets from a different point of view. There is an insistent and rapidly growing demand for hygienic corsetry, corsets scientifically designed for types.

The all-elastic corset is being replaced with front lacing corsets. Women who wore these all-elastic garments through wrong ideas of beauty, found that they could not perform the hygienic function of a properly designed corset: permitting the figure to sag and lose its shape. But to successfully wear the modern clothes, a smooth back is necessary. These important features are found in Gossard Corsets with their graceful, slenderizing front lines and their smooth, uninterrupted back lines that cannot be attained in any imitating front lacing corset or the old-fashioned back lacing corsets.

MODEL 200, CURVED—For average to stout figure. The nine-inch clasp extends three inches above the waist line at the front, graduating to a slightly higher back to care for excess flesh at the shoulder blades. The medium length skirt has ample fullness for hips and thighs, and the very flat back terminates in a two-inch elastic section. Four hooks and eyes and two sets of hose supporters

$2.50

MODEL 202, AVERAGE—A very adaptable corset designed for the medium to slight figures. The short front clasp extends two and one-half inches above the waist line, the graceful top curving under the bust to a slightly higher support at the back. The skirt slopes to medium length over hips and thighs, graduating to a medium length back where it terminates in a two inch elastic section. Four hooks and eyes. Fancy pink batiste

$2.50

MODEL 241, AVERAGE—For the medium to curved figure. The top is three inches above the waist line. The skirt is medium length at the front, slopes to a long hip line and then graduates to a medium length back. Has two sets of hose supporters. Plain coutil, in pink and white

$3.75

MODEL 382, STRAIGHT—A lightly boned corset for the slight figure. It has a low comfortable elastic top, one and one-half inches above the waist line. The medium length skirt is cut straight around the figure, has three hooks and eyes below the front clasp, three sets of hose supporters and an elastic section at the back. Fancy pink broche

$5.50

MODEL 388, CURVED—For the tall heavy figure. This model is heavily boned, especially at the back to care for the woman of long, full proportions below the waist line. The flat back ends in a three-inch section of elastic. There are three hooks and eyes and three sets of hose supporters. Plain white coutil

$6.50

MODEL 584, AVERAGE—For medium to stout figure. The top is three and one-half inches above the waist line and curves under the bust to a medium high back. The long skirt has considerable fullness, and has a four-inch elastic section across the back. Pink figured broche. Priced

$7.50

MODEL 523, AVERAGE—This is an ideal garment for the average to stout figures. The front measures two and one-half inches above the waist line, shaping to three inches at the back. A two and one-half inch elastic section under the bust gives comfort and freedom of movement. The long, heavily boned skirt has a six-inch elastic section over the thigh which is reinforced by a section of the body material starting at the waist line and sloping to a V-shape at bottom when it terminates in a looped hose supporter. BLACKFALDS BREEZES

(Unavoidably crowded out last week.)
The Helping Hand Bazaar of the Blindman District which was held at the Methodist Church on Saturday, November 15th, proved a great success, both socially and financially. The afternoon consisted of a sale of fancy work which was donated by the ladies of the district. The ladies had a pleasant afternoon selling their work to many customers who came from near and far to purchase their goods. In the evening the public were invited to a very enjoyable programme, which consisted of the following items:
Piano solo by Hazel Ironsides; Address by Rev. Lobb; duet by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller; recitation by Doris Huppelshausen; piano solo by Amelia Hedemark; recitation by Jack Roe; solo by Harold Hunt; recitation by Nettie Roe instrumental duet by Mrs. B. Packier and Mr. R. Miller; monologue by Mrs. Ironsides; recitation by Annie Miller; song by Edith Lavery; recitation by Ethel Roe; instrumental duet by Mrs. Hukil and Mr. D. Krouse; recitation by Miss McConnel; solo by Mr. Hukil; duet by the Misses McConnel and Hedemark; trio by Mrs. Packier and Messrs. Lobb and Cummings. Judging from the encores which many received the audience was well pleased with the programme. The singing of the Maple Leaf brought the programme to a close. Light refreshments were served during the afternoon and evening.

Mr. Irvine Goodwin returned from the north country on Monday last.

Mr. A. Norton, of Prince Rupert, made a short visit in Blackfalds last week. Mr. Norton is one of the old-timers, and after five years' absence he noticed considerable change in our village. He returned home on Monday accompanied by his wife and family, also Mr. Norton's daughter, Miss Dorothy Billis, who expects to spend the winter in Prince Rupert.

A number of enthusiastic young people who still believe in the old-time amusements, journeyed westward on Friday night of last week, somewhere between Blackfalds and Rocky Mountain House, to find a suitable hill on which to coast. After many ups and downs, the hill was located on which they spent the evening, at the close of which a dainty lunch was served to the cold, benighted snowmen.

On Monday evening, a second party consisting of the Sunday School classes and their teachers enjoyed coasting on the Blackfalds hill. Mrs. Chambers, their superintendent, served lunch to the S.S.

THANK GOD

A dinner was given in New York, at which a well-known actor sat at the guest table. When the hour for starting the feast arrived, the toast master, a very religious man, discovered that no minister of the Gospel was present, though several had been invited. In this emergency he turned to the actor and asked him to say grace.
The actor rose, bowed his head, and in the midst of a deep hush said fervently:
"There being no clergyman present, let us thank God!"

ALBERTA'S COALS

President Dr. Tory Replies to Prof. Bone

President Dr. Tory, of the University of Alberta, in the Edmonton Journal, gave the following very interesting review of Alberta's coals in reply to the strictures of Prof. Bone, of the British Science Association party on their non-adaptability, he claimed, for outside markets. Dr. Tory says:—
I have been given the opportunity of reading the discussion which took place over the remarks of Prof. Bone, so he happens that Prof. Bone is a very able coal chemist and as such can speak with authority about matters that come immediately under his own direct study. It is equally certain, however, from his remarks that he has not a clear conception either of the coal resources of Alberta or of the work that is being done in the study of them in this province. Perhaps a word about the realities of our coal will be permitted in order that one may see clearly the absurdity of the position taken by Prof. Bone.

Coals may be divided roughly into three classes; at the top, those high in carbon—anthracite and the anthracitic coals; at the bottom, those high in oxygen—the sub-bituminous and lignitic coals; and, in the middle, those high in hydrogen, but low in oxygen—the bituminous coals. Alberta has coals of all three types. The bituminous, connected with two of the classes of these coals, the anthracitic and bituminous coals, are in many respects similar to the problems which have been or are yet to be overcome in many other parts of the world. It is with the third class, the high-oxygen coals, commonly referred to as the "domestic" coals of Alberta, that the economic and economic problems to be met in Alberta, are sharply differentiated from those of elsewhere. It is, therefore, natural to find that it is in reference to coals of this class that outsiders make the most obvious mistakes.

Anthracite and bituminous coals are high in heating value, whilst the high-oxygen coals are distinctly lower in this respect. But on the other hand the high-oxygen coals share with the high-carbon, or anthracitic coals the great cleanliness in handling and in burning. Proof of this latter point is easy to give in Edmonton, where high oxygen coals are burned, and where, even on the coldest winter's morning, a smoking house chimney is unknown.

The Fire's Proof
To the housewife, cleanliness in coal ranks in importance with heating value, and no one who has lived in a smoke-leagured city of the east would doubt the wisdom of such judgment. Bituminous coals can be burned without smoke, but the practical fact is that they are not generally so burned. To blend bituminous coals with the domestic coals for use would be to rob the latter of its great virtue of cleanliness. It has furthermore been tried and abandoned for other reasons in connection with railway operations in Western Canada.

The high oxygen coals have been referred to as a single class. There is, however, a wide variety of such coals in the province. The higher moisture content varieties will not store well, but are good for home use. Those with a lower moisture content, store better, and have a higher heating value, and will therefore command a more extended market.
During the past four years, over 500 coal samples from this province have been analyzed in the university in addition to the many thorough tests and investigations on different types of Alberta coals which have been carried out in the industrial research laboratories. For anyone to say that little is known of the coals between Saskatchewan and the Rockies is therefore merely a betrayal of ignorance, although no one knows better than the local workers how much more there is yet to be learned.

Dr. Bone has shown, during his recent visit as well as by his earlier correspondence with the local mining engineer, that his knowledge of Alberta coals and Alberta conditions is a superficial one, based on old reports published in Ottawa rather than on the intensive study of Alberta coals now in progress in the province. His attitude appears to be based on a desire to have his processes and appliances adopted in Alberta rather than on an honest attempt to study and understand Alberta's resources and problems.
Again I say that this particular case is merely an incident, which perhaps we locally regret but after all has really no significance and must not for the moment be received as minimizing the great benefit and stimulation which cannot but follow the visit of the British association to our city, nor should it be regarded as in any way minimizing the almost unanimous expressions of good-will and congratulations which this great body of scientific men, extended to our province with respect to its institutions and its natural possibilities.

RIDGEWOOD

Since the arrival of the warm weather we feel more reconciled to the fact that this may not be such a cruel winter as was at first threatened, and if the mild weather continues, thawing may be resumed in a few days.
There will be a dance and box social for the Community Hall on Friday evening, November 28. Good orchestra music will be provided, and an enjoyable time is expected. Ladies are asked to kindly bring boxes. Better come over with the crowd on November 28.

Levi Bourne has installed an up-to-date radio outfit, and is busy catching messages from all quarters of the globe. The radio is a Westinghouse, and was purchased through W. Hoyle, of Penhold.

A. A. Young of the Junior Red Cross has recently been organized by the pupils of the Ridgewood school through the efforts of the teacher, Miss Thompson, and we understand they intend putting on an entertainment and dance in the hall in the near future.

Mr. Victor Moore has been spending a few days with her parents in Red Deer this week.
Mr. Moore who has been with Mrs. Moore who has gone through two very serious operations. We are glad to learn that she is considered now out of danger.
The Thanksgiving supper and entertainment put on by the Ladies' Aid on Monday evening was in every way a pronounced success. The attendance was very satisfactory considering the rather cold night, and the ladies very creditably maintained their reputation for providing big spreads. The programme was the best that has been put on in the hall for some time, and they contributed almost entirely by local talent, comprising songs, recitations, dialogues, and a mock trial put on by some of the members of the Ridgewood Dramatic Club. It is often surprising what talent can be found for providing big spreads.

Mr. McAllister exchanges pulpits on Sunday with Mr. Young, of Bowden, who will address the congregation in the church here on "Church here." This is one of the outstanding questions in Canada today, and as a vote for the Presbyterian church, a good crowd should turn out on Sunday to hear Mr. McAllister.

We heard during the Thanksgiving festivities of a chicken making his last placed in a half-plucked condition, and wonder if he has been run down yet.
Mr. J. Finlay, delegate, and Messrs. O. Sigurdson and Tom Sigurdson attended the U.P.A. convention in Red Deer last week.
Posters are out announcing a meeting of the Liberals in Markerville on Saturday afternoon, 22nd inst, for the purpose of appointing delegates to the convention in Calgary next week. The political pot is commencing to boil once more.

JOFFRE ITEMS

(Crowded out last week)

November 18th.
Mr. Frank Miller is visiting at St. Paul de Metis.

Miss McFee, of Red Deer, spent the week end with Miss Mamie Ellis. Mr. and Mrs. Barnett, of Haynes, were visitors in Joffre, Sunday.

We hear that a masquerade dance is being held in the hall on New Year's eve. Get your suits ready.

Our young people are very busy these days practicing for the Christmas tree concert, which is to be held in the hall on the 23rd of December.

The Miller Brothers, Charlie and Earl, were out west on a hunting expedition, bringing home a couple of moose and a deer, after which Mr. and Mrs. Earl Miller left by car for Calgary.

We are sorry to report that Mr. McLean is still on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bolton were visitors at Parran over Thanksgiving.

HAYNES HAPPENINGS

Nov. 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. Lounsbury and two children, from Lethbridge, spent the holiday and week-end with Charlie Blackwell. Mr. Lounsbury returned on Monday to his duties on the High School staff, but the family are staying out the week reserving old acquaintances. Both are well acquainted in the district, having taught in neighboring schools, as well as Hopetown.

Most of our teachers attended the convention at Lacombe, Mrs. Barritt, Mrs. Lindsay, Miss Irish, Miss Gillespie, of Stone's, and Miss Rainsforth, of St. Patrick's, remained at their homes near Lacombe for the holidays. Miss Irish also spent Thanksgiving at home.
Practically all of Haynes ate their turkey dinner out at Sateinwood, and enjoyed the very successful bazaar, supper and program. The ladies were well pleased with the entertainment right through. Haynes will have to bump themselves to do as well on Nov. 28th.

We understand that a few are taking in the U.P.A. Convention in Red Deer. There was a meeting of the local Tuesday night.

The Logging Bee

IN Canada's early days the logging bee organized the co-operative power of our pioneer communities in the generous spirit of mutual helpfulness. There was no other profit looked for.

In the same spirit to-day, Mutual Life Insurance organizes mutual co-operative helpfulness for the protection of the widowed and the fatherless or the aged.

Mutual insurance is not organized for profit. All profits go back to the policyholders. Each contributes to the strength of all, and the strength of all is used for the protection of each.

Our nearest agent will be glad to give you details about our different policies. Write to our head office for our booklet on Mutual Insurance.

A MOTTO

I asked the New Year for some motto
sweet,
Some rule of life with which to guide
my feet.
I asked and paused. He answered
soft and low:
"God's will to know."

"Will knowledge, then, suffice, New Year?"
And ere the question into silence
died
The answer came: "Nay, but remember, too,
God's will to do."

Once more I asked: "Is there no more to tell?"
And once again the answer softly
foth:
"Yes, this one thing, all other things
shove—
God's will to love."

BEING CAREFUL

Put went to a chemist to get an empty bottle. Selecting one that answered his purpose, he asked: "How much?"

"Well," said the chemist, "If you want the empty bottle it will cost you twenty cents, but if you want something put in it, I won't charge anything for the bottle."
"Sure, that's fair enough," said Pat; "put in a cork."

WHAT IS GOODNESS?

Goodness is love in action, love with its hand at the plough, love with the burden on its back; it is love carrying medicine to the sick and food to the famished; it is love reading the Bible to the blind and explaining the gospel to the felon in his cell; it is love at the Sunday school, or in the Mission School; it is love at the farm house door, or sailing far away in the missionary ship; but whatever task it undertakes it is still the same—love following His footsteps "who abase, who continually doing good."—Dr. J. Hamilton.

JUDGE VERY OBLIGING

James B. Harrington, from Gadaby way, was in the toils of the A. P. P. last week, charged with theft of cattle and horses from many of his neighbors. He chose a speedy trial and appeared before his Honor Judge Mahaffy on Saturday. He pleaded guilty to the charge and explained that he was living alone and often became so lonely that he temporarily went out of his mind. At such times he invariably stole and traded off an animal or two. He wanted to move to some new country and learn a trade. I have just the place for you in my mind, said the judge. Three years at Prince Albert, and you will have a fine chance to learn a trade. C. C. S. Crosby appeared for the Crown.
